THE MONTGOMERYSHIRE PEDIGREES,

FROM

THE "VISITATIONS OF WALES", BY LEWIS DWNN.

THE project, commenced in 1884, for printing these pedigrees for the use of the Members of the Powys-land Club is now carried out. The high authority of Lewis Dwnn's Visitations, and the extreme rarity and costliness of the work in which they were first printed by the Welsh Manuscript Society in 1846, rendered it desirable that the Montgomeryshire portion of such Visitations should be placed in the hands of the Members. This has been done, without extra cost, as part of the publications of the Club.

One hundred extra copies have been printed before the type was distributed, which are intended to be offered to Members of the Club in the first instance. Any not taken by them will be offered for sale to the public.

INTRODUCTION.

To aid the memory in cherishing and perpetuating the record of what is honourable and of good report in families, has been pronounced "the science of fools with long memories." If wisdom were always associated with a short or tarnished one, we might accept such a dictum; but, as this is not so, we may safely refer elsewhere for a more truthful definition of so well-abused and misrepresented a study as genealogy. The notion that Welsh genealogy is a pleasant fiction, invented to favour some personal or local conceit, or harmless peculiarity, is doubtless the property of fools; but one not generally accepted by the wise. Those who have interested themselves in the study of Welsh history, will affirm that the investigation of pedigree was the province of a specially-selected body of official persons, termed Arwyddveirdd, or Herald Bards, upon whom the State imposed the particular duty of registering arms and pedigrees. Theirs was neither a vain nor fanciful work, but one of practical and social utility.

The law, as it affected real property in Wales, doubtless gave rise to that predilection for pedigree generally attributed to Welshmen. This amiable weakness, however, was strongly infused with a considerable portion of practical common sense. There was something more solid than personal vanity which moved the acute but misrepresented genealogist. The law of the land was so constituted that the Welshman's pedigree was his title-deed, by which he claimed his birthright in the country. Everyone was obliged to show his descent through nine generations in order to be acknowledged a free native, and by which right he claimed his portion of land in the community. "A person passed the ninth descent, formed a new pen cenedyl, or head of a family. Every family was represented by its elders, and these elders from every family were delegated to the national council."[1] Hence the Welshman, rightly or wrongly, was led to look upon his pedigree as a charter of his national rights and personal estate; but, in addition, it stamped the possessor, no matter what might be the fortune or the misfortune of himself or of any particular generation of his ancestry, as a Gwr Boneddig, i.e., a gentleman with a bonedd, a pedigree.

[1] History and Antiquities of the County of Cardigan, quoted in the Introduction to Lewys Dwnn's Visitation of Wales, by Sir Samuel Rush Meyrick.

"The origin of this system is buried in the depths of antiquity, for it was found to be in existence at the early part of the tenth century, when Howel the Good revised the laws of his country."

Out of deference to Saxon misconception, we omit the enumeration of the Herald Bards of what might be deemed a mythological era, and refer to some of these Arwyddveirdd, or keepers of genealogical records of more modern times. Among those who are in evidence, and of greater distinction at the close of the fourteenth century, was Llewelyn Ofeiriad, a descendant from Owen Brogyntyn, whose genealogical registers are still preserved at Jesus College, Oxford. The fifteenth and sixteenth century authorities,[1] whose works are still extant, continued the family records of descent for those times; but our attention is naturally arrested by three names of distinguished Powysians of the recording fraternity; of Rhys Cain, who lived to an old age, and wrote between the years 1560 and 1600; "Lodwic Lloyd, who was serjeant-at-arms to Queen Elizabeth", and wrote from 1586-1609; "Lewys Dwnn," the result of a small portion of whose labours is offered in its present form to the Members of the Powys-land Club.

We must not measure Lewys Dwnn by the standard of the ordinary genealogical amateur. His was a life-long professional experience. He tells us that he was one of the disciples of William Llyn, and had a copy of all his pedigrees and books; and prior to that had been a disciple of Hywel ap Sir Matthew, and that he possessed several of his collections. This shows not only his heraldic education, but that he lost no opportunity of adding to his genealogical authorities. His fellow-student was the highly esteemed Rhys Cain of Oswestry, who became possessed of William Llyn's books, and liberally allowed Lewys Dwnn to copy them.[2]

In 1585, Robert Cooke, Clarenceux, and William Flower, Norroy, Kings of Arms, turned their attention to Wales, and, on the recommendation of many gentlemen of local interest and genealogical acquirements, appointed Lewys Dwnn as their "Deputy Herald-at-Arms over the three Crowns of Wales and the Marches". Subsequently a second patent was granted, by Cooke and Somerset, on the 3rd of February, in the 28th of Elizabeth 1585, as follows:—

"To ALL AND SINGULAR as well noble estates and gentlemen, as others to whome these p'ntes shall come, Robert Cooke, Esquire al's Clarencieulx Kinge of Armes for the East, West and South partes of the realme of England from the ryuer of Trent southward, and Somersett, Marescall to Norroy Kinge of Armes of the East West and North partes of the realme of England from the same river northward, send Greetinge. Whereas it hath pleased the Queenes most excellent Matie to authorize us, the said Clarencieulx and

[1] The list down to Rhys Cain appears in Sir Samuel Rush Meyrick's Introduction to the Visitations, pp. xi, xii, as follows: "Llewellyn Grugeryr, Cynevrig ap Grono, who flourished in 1450; Gutyn Owain (1460-90); John Leiav (1480); Gruffydd ap Jeuan ap Llewellyn Vychan (1470-1520); Jeuan Brechva (ob. 1500); Gruffydd Hiraethog (1520-50); Sion Tudyr (1580-1602).

Norroy by our selfes or our deputies to make visitacions and surveyes within our severall provinces and precinctes for knowledge and view of all manner of Armes, creastes, cognoysances, and other lyke devyses, and of the descentes pedegrees and marriages of all the nobilitie and gentrie therein through-out conteyned to be for memory and the benefyte of all posteritie, recorded and entred, and to enjoyne us to sondry other services and duties belonging to our office and charge, as by her highnes' gracious letters, patentes and cōmissions severally to us granted under the great seale of England more largely doth appeare. In which said cōmissions all paynters, glasyers, goldsmythes, gravers, and all other artificers whatsover he or they be, are expressly prohibited and forbidden to paynt, grave, glase, devise or settle forth by any wayes or meanes any manner of armes, creastes, cognoysances, pedigrees or other devises perteynenge to the office of Armes within either of the said provinces. And lykewyse that no person or persons should intromitte or meddle in any thinge or thinges touchinge and concerninge the office of Armes within either of the said provinces, otherwise or in any other forme or manner then they may lawfully doe, and shall be allowed, and specially therevnto licensed and autorized by us the said Clarencieulx and Norroy our deputie or deputies under the seales of our said offices first had and obtained. KNOW YE that we the said Clarencieulx and Somersett as Mareschall to Norroy, carefully myndinge the advancement of her Maties service, and the performance of all that our places and roome do crave to have done within our severall provinces and our charge ar moved to enclyne unto the request made unto us by sondry gentlemen of good credit well willers unto the cōntrey of Wales on behalfe of this bearer ☞ LEWES AP RHIS AP OWEN al's DUN of Buttus in the cantred of Kedewen within the cōntie of Montgomerie, that on respecte of his former trayveyles thouroughowte the most part of the said countrey for the atteyninge unto the knowledge of the lynes pedigrees and descentes of the chiefest families and kindredes within that principalitie (the bookes and gatherings whereof we have seene) may the rather upon their comendac'on, and his paynfull dilig—— heretofore vsed together in regard of his skill in the Welshe or Britishe tongue be by us encoraged and allowed to contynew and goe forward in makinge his collections thoroughowt the said principalitie whereunto for the former respectes, and because that contrey by reason of the diversitie of the languague hath not bene of late yeares by men of our place surveyed, nor the lynes and races of the gentlemen so observed as they ought, and as we greatly wishe they should be, to the benefite of that contrey, we do willingely condescent and agree and by these p'ntes do allow him the said Lewis ap Rhis to record, register, and make entrances of all the discents, marriages, funeralles, and obites of the knightes, esquires, and gentlemen inhabitinge within the said pricipalitie or the Dominions and Lordships marcher thereof: omittinge all high lynes dedvced from farre aboue all memorie which for great part are found to be conjecturall, unlesse evidences, histories or matters of good credict be showed for approbac'on thereof. Wherein he is to have special regard that such as shall uniustly intrude theimselfes into any family upon the bare coherency or lykelyhode of surname or armes, beinge otherwyse meere strangers therunto may be bewrayed and descryed; and that Bastardes and their descendentes may be scuowr'd from the legitimates, takinge for witnesse and testimonie of the truth of his proceedinges the handes and subscriptions of the parties to his booke of entrances and with all addinge thervnto the yeere, dwellinge place, parishe, commot, cantred or Hundred and Shire, with the degree and misterie of theim so planly, truly, and faithfully withowt partialitie, affection or flatterie that Tyme, which is the mother of truth, never discovers any falshode or fraude to his and their reproche and infamye. And wher he shall perceave variance and contention touchinge title of inheritance dependinge upon doubtfull descent or consanguinitie by no meanes to intermedle therin to the preiudice of any of the parties, vnlesse he be by either of them thervnto specially willed and requested, neythur yet rashely to take upon him to decyde such scruples and doubtes as may aryse betwene parties touchinge Armes, creastes or cognoysances but rather referre them to the hearinge of us the said Clarencieulx and Somersett or any one of us within whose province or charge the parties whome it concerneth ar resyant and abydinge. Of which his proceedinges in all and singular the premisses the said Lewis ap Ris once everie yeare is to acquaynt us the said Clarencieulx and Somersett or oftener yf need so require if by us he be thervnto willed and appoynted that so we may discerne of his doenges as well as to record and register in our offices all that we shall fynd rightly and truly done as to rectifie and reforme those thinges that we shall perceve wrōe and mistaken. In witnesse whereof, We the said Clarencieulx and Somersett for Norroy have hereunto subscribed our names and sette the seales of our several offices, the third day of February Anno Dni 1585, in the XXVIIIth yere of the reigne of our most gracious Sou'ergne Lady Queen Elizabeth."

The high qualifications which recommended him to the College of Arms in 1586 seem by the following entry in one of his manuscripts to have been appreciated at a much later date: "Finished by Lewys Dwnn deput heraught at armes over all Walles unless Clarenseux and Noroy Kinge at armes Ano Regine Elizabethe 39, 1597." The work of Lewys Dwnn under such high sanction and authority, with the reputation for accuracy his Visitations possess generally throughout the principality, induced the Welsh Manuscript Society to give them the preference for publication to the pedigrees of Jevan Brechva, now in the possession of Lord Harlech at Brogynton, or to the still more ancient collection of Llewelyn Ofeiriad at Oxford.

One of the most laborious and conscientious genealogists of our time, who had unusual access to authoritative sources, the late

Mr. Joseph Morris of Shrewsbury, whose valuable genealogical series, of some twenty huge folios, relating to Shropshire and border families remains still in MS., speaking of Dwnn's South Wales collection says:—"I have had several opportunities of testing Lewys Dwnn's pedigrees by deeds and other authentic records, and have always found them singularly correct, notwithstanding the apparent barbarism of his spelling." Mr. Morris's testimony is confirmed in numerous instances by the more recent discovery of records which might never have seen the light, nor been appreciated when found, but for the stimulus to research and the educated facility given to such pursuit by the association and laudable emulation of Powys-land Club membership.

One of Dwnn's MSS.[1] has the following title and introduction:

"THE BOOK OF LEWIS DOONN,

Poet, of Montgomeryshire, of Bettws, in Cydhewain on Berriew, who is Deputy Herald at Arms over the three provinces of Wales, and in the Marches of Wales, under the patent and seals of Clarenciuex and Norroy, two Kings of Arms, under the Great seal, for the Southward and the North-ward, for North and South Wales.

The above title and introduction are given to his Heraldic Visitations of Carmarthen, Pembroke, and Cardigan. Dwnn's original MS. of his Visitation of Montgomeryshire, although there is evidence of its former existence, is lost. No energies have been wanting to ascertain what has become of it. Still, there is no reason to despair, in the face of many fortunate finds, that its whereabouts may yet be ascertained. With the view of assisting its discovery, the following account, given by Sir Samuel Rush Meyrick in his editorial introduction to the Visitations, dated 1846, may be acceptable.

"All I have as yet been able to present to the public is here before it. Mr. Lloyd Mostyn informs me that the collection of manuscripts, formerly at Gloddaith, are at Mostyn, in the boxes in which they were packed for removal, these never have been opened. In the mean time, to supply as far as possible the deficiency, my friend, Sir Thomas Phillipps, of Middle Hill, Worcestershire, has most kindly given me a transcript of the Montgomeryshire pedigrees, from a manuscript he purchased at Lord Berwick's sale, written by John Rhydderch, a poet and grammarian, and household bard in the Bulkeley family in Anglesey. He also printed, under the name of 'John Roderick', in Shrewsbury, in the year 1716, A Display of Heraldry, written by John Davies of Rhiwlas, in the parish of Llansilin, co. Denbigh, gentleman."

There is encouragement in the following remarks of Mr. Joseph Morris:

"I find from various MSS. and private documents that have come under my observation that Lewys Dwnn's Visitations extended from about 1580 to 1614, and the Counties of Montgomery, Flint, and Denbigh are included in one volume, called by Lewys Dwnn himself, Llyfr Coch o Bowys (The Red Book of Powys)."

In another letter to Sir Samuel Rush Meyrick he says:

"I have myself some right documents which enable me to state, that in the original visitation book of Lewys Dwnn the following families, in addition to those included in this work, had their pedigrees entered by Lewys Dwnn in his Visitations of Montgomeryshire.

"Bowen of Trefeglwys; of Trallwng Coch (1595); Davies of Coedyberen; Derwas of Sarne, etc.; Evans of Ceri; of Penegos; of Montgomery (1591); Griffith of Brongain; Hughes of Llanfyllin (1586); James of Weeg; Jones of Arwystle (1586); of Llanfair; Kerry of Llanfyllin (1586); Lloyd of Trefnant; of Dolobran; of Domgay; of Gwernygo (1586); Maurice of Trevedryd; of Llansaintffraid; of Montgomery (1592); of Caersws (1586); Morgan of Newtown; of Fronfraith; Morris of Ucheldre in Bettus; Oliver of Neuddwen; Owen of Machynlleth; of Llunllo (1595-1603); Price of Llanfyllin (1586); Pierce of Keri; Powell of Llanidloes (1586); Thomas of Ystymcollwyn; Thomas of Aston in Lydham (1610); Vaughan of the Glyn; of Melyniog Fawr in Llansantffraid; Williams of Llwynrhyddod in Llangurig; Williams of Dolanog; and many other families, who adhering to the ancient Welsh custom, had not, at that period, adopted a fixed surname."

It is therefore much to be regretted that John Rhydderch, who in 1711-12 had an opportunity of transcribing the whole of Lewys Dwnn's Visitations of Montgomeryshire, not only unwisely exercised his power of selection, but, what is equally to be regretted, not only took the liberty of translating the language into English, and in so doing modernizing the spelling of Welsh names, but also of making veracious though unauthorised additions. Fortunately, Mr. Joseph Morris was entrusted with the revision and correction of what is now before the public, and with the addition thereto of many interesting notes.

Having so far dealt with the office, it now remains to say something of the individual, whose labours in genealogical research are now offered in a compact issue to the Members of the Powys-land Club.

It may have been remarked that the Herald's Patent is addressed to Lewys ap Rhis ap Owen al's Dun—a designation which correctly apprises us that this surname was not that of his, but of his mother's, family, she being the sixth daughter, not the heiress, of Captain Rhys Gôch Dwnn of Cefn y Gwestyd, Montgomeryshire. Lewys Dwnn's father was, as will be seen below, Rhys ap Owen, and it was the sole issue of his marriage with Captain Dwnn's daughter, "Lewis Dwne of Welshe Poole" and Bettws, our Powysian Herald, who first adopted Dwnn as a surname.

His maternal ancestor, David Dwnn, a scion of the house of Kidwelly, on receiving the appointment of seneschall to Sir Edward de Charlton, Baron of Powys, was the first of his family who settled in Montgomeryshire; and who, by his marriage with Angharad, daughter and co-heir of Dakws Lloyd, became possessed of the Gwestyd. Captain Dwnn was the great-great-grandson of this David, whose pedigree is given in the Introduction to the Visitations, p. xxvi. The pedigree of the paternal line of our Herald, divested of some of its collateral branches, which are also there given, is to be seen in the Harleian MS. No. 1973, folios 40, 41, in the Library of the British Museum, and is as follows :—

LEWIS DWNE OF WELSHE POOLE.

Einion ap Llewellin ap Meiler Gryg. = Gwenhwyer, da. to Einion ap Kynvellin ap Dolfyn.

    - b

With such results of life-long labour in the possession of posterity it is a matter of regret, to those claiming Dwnn as a countryman, and whose name is a household world in Powysland, that so little is known of him personally. "All attempts", says Sir E. R. Meyrick, "and they have been numerous, to ascertain any particulars of the private life of our Author have proved abortive; and, although I have been most readily assisted in this matter by the zealous co-operation of the Earl of Powys, my friends W. W. E. Wynne of Peniarth, Esq., and the enlightened Welsh scholar, the Rev. Walter Davies, I have not succeeded in ascertaining even the period of his death. These indefatigable coadjutors have diligently searched registers, manor rolls, etc., without any satisfactory result, therefore it can only be conjectured that he died in the reign of James I."[1]

That his eldest son, James, had his father's papers, and inherited some of his tastes, we gather from the following endorsement of the pedigree of "Jones of Llwyn Ririd, Forden", in the possession of Captain Herbert Owen Johnes of the Lower Garthmyl family:

"This Rolle made by Lewys Dwnn, being Deputy Herald under Clarencieux and Norroys, was collected of ould Bookes and Records, which Records are in the keeping of James Dwnn, son of the said Lewys Dwnn, which Bookes make good this Rolle verbatim.

"JAMES DWYNN, 1639."[2]

Lewys Dwnn's paternal arms were those ascribed to Brochwel, Prince of Powys, viz.: Sable, three nags' heads erased, argent; and if the ladies are correctly described as heiresses in his pedigree, he would be entitled to quarter the arms ascribed to Jestyn ap Gwrgant, viz. : Gules, three chevrons, argent, and those of Elystan Glodrydd, and perhaps others.

[2] The Heightley estate, which is in the parish of Chirbury and county of Salop, close to the border of Montgomeryshire, was sold by Robert Newton, the last of his family who possessed it. The estate then became the property of Robert Lord Clive, great grandfather of the present Earl of Powis, who is now the owner thereof.

[3] Other authorities, amongst which is the pedigree of the Cradocks, given in page 144 of the Welsh MSS. Society's edition of these pedigrees, vol. i, state that this Iestyn was son of Owain ap Howel Dda, and which is most probably correct.

[4] Much of the seeming anachronisms and difficulties in Welsh History respecting Rhydderch ab Iestyn would be avoided, by assigning to him his proper descent as grandson of Howel Dda, who died in 948, and not making him to be a son of Iestyn ap Gwrgan, Prince of Glamorgan; Rhydderch ab Iestyn having assumed the Sovereignty of South Wales in 1021, was slain in 1031, and his son Caradock was killed in battle with King Harold in 1035; whence it appears almost impossible that he could have been a son of Iestyn ap Gwrgan, from whom the Normans won the country of Glamorgan in 1091.

[3] In page 45 of the Welsh MSS. Society's edition of these pedigrees, vol. i, she is called Margaret, which name is also given her in the MS. Book of Pedigrees referred to in page 238, in the possession of the Printer of that edition, from which the following is extracted concerning the Cradock family, and which will serve to supply some particulars omitted above :—" John Cradock of Newton, & Margaret Moethe, his wife, had issue—Richard Cradock al' Newton, Esq. maried Emmota, da. & heir of John Harvey of London. Sir John Newton, Knight, son of Richard Cradock alias Newton & of the said Emmota, mard. Isabell, da. of Thomas Cheder ; & had issue. Thomas Newton, Esq. mard. [1] Nant Criba Hall, about two miles north from Montgomery.

[2] Sir Gruffydd Vychan, Knight, was descended from Brochwel Ysgythrog, Prince of Powys. According to the accounts of genealogists, "Sir Gruffydd Vychan of Powys" was created Knight Banneret at the battle of Agincourt. He probably commanded the quota sent from his own district in the general levy from Wales; and as he received the honour of Knighthood in the company of Sir David Gam and his brave relatives, Sir Roger Vaughan and Sir Watkin Lloyd, who died on the field of battle, it may be presumed that Sir Gruffydd Vychan shared with them in the exploit of rescuing their Sovereign from a very perilous situation. In the case of Sir Gruffydd Vychan, and also of others who obtained distinction at Agincourt, we observe their families, in no length of time, rising to consideration and importance in their respective neighbourhoods. Sir Gruffydd Vychan, soon after that event, was called Lord of Burgedin, Treflydan, Garth, and Gaerfawr, though he had commenced his career as second son of Gruffydd ab Ieuan ap Madoc Gwenwys, a petty chieftain in Guilsfield; and his descendants continued, for many years after his decease, persons of consequence and influence in the country. About the latter end of 1417, two years after the battle of Agincourt, we find Sir Gruffydd Vychan, and his elder brother, Ieuan, in an employment which redounded little to their credit, though probably they acted on the occasion in obedience to the command of their paramount Lord. Henry V having given up Sir John Oldcastle, his old companion and faithful soldier, to the rigour of the law which had then been lately passed against the Lollards, he was at this time taken in Powys Land, under the direction of Edward Charlton, the last Lord Powys of that name, and conducted to London by Sir John Grey, his son-in-law. From documents at present in the possession of their descendants, through heirs female, namely, the family of Mytton of Garth, in Guilsfield, it appears that the active agents in arresting Sir John Oldcastle were the two brothers, Ieuan and Sir Gruffydd Vychan; and, from the privileges specifically granted them on account thereof, that it was considered a service of danger. Sir Gruffydd Vychan, there is sufficient authority for stating, was eventually taken off himself in a violent manner. From an Elegy, written to his memory by Davydd Llwyd ap Llewelyn of Mathavarn, we collect that, having refused to obey a summons of Henry Grey, Lord of Powys, to perform some feudal service, he was by him put to death by decapitation; and, as is intimated by the "Cywydd", by violating a safe conduct granted to him. Sir Gruffydd Vychan must at this time have been far advanced in years; for, at the period of the battle of Agincourt, Henry Grey was not born. Sir Gruffydd Vychan had issue David, Reynold, and Cadwaladr; Catherine, wife of Edward Bewpy; Gwenhwyvar, wife of Gruffydd ap Aaron ap Ednyved; Anne, wife of Ieuan Vychan of Penllyn; and Margaret, wife of Morys Ludlow, and afterwards married to an English Knight.

[3] Madoc Gwenwys married Arddun, daughter of Rhys ap Sir Aaron ap Bledri, Knight of the Sepulchre, and had issue Ieuan, Gruffydd, John, Rhys, and Margaret, wife of Adda Ddu of Ceri.

[4] David Lloyd was twice married. His second wife was Elen, daughter of Jenkin Kynaston, Esq., by whom he had issue Humphrey Lloyd, Roger Lloyd, Edward Lloyd, and Ann, wife of William Corbet of Worthyn, Esq. He had also a daughter, Catherine, by his first wife.

[1] John Arneway, whose daughter, Joyce, married Austin ap Rees, was, though of a Shropshire family, of Tregynon, in the county of Montgomery, where he probably resided as a lessee or manager under the Blayney family, the heads of which were at this period holding military commands in the armies of Queen Elizabeth, and obtained large grants in Ireland, where they are now represented by the present Lord Blayney. Margaret Arneway, sister of John Arneway of Tregynon, married Owen ap Morris (or Maurice, ap Howell ap Evan ap Griffith Lloyd, page 282, Welsh MSS. Society Edition of these Pedigrees) of Caer Sws, in Montgomeryshire; and when the Arneways returned into Shropshire, the descendants of Owen ap Morris and Margaret migrated with them. The celebrated Royalist, John Arneway, D.D., Archdeacon of Salop, in the Diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, Prebend of Wolvey, in the same Diocese, Rector of Hodnet, etc., was a grandson of John Arneway of Tregynon. Dr. Arneway was among the Royalists taken prisoner by the forces of Colonel Mytton, in the capture of Shrewsbury, on the 22nd of February 1644-5. While subsequently an exile for his loyalty, he wrote "The Tablet, or Moderation of Charles the First, Martyr", 12mo., printed after his death, in 1661. See "Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy." After suffering imprisonment, and being driven an exile to the Hague, he was, by necessity, forced thence to Virginia, where he died (before the Restoration of Royalty) in 1653.

[1] In the next Pedigree, this Herbert is improperly called Henry. He was Chamberlain to Henry I, of whom, it is stated, he was a natural son. See page 196, vol. i, of the Welsh MSS. Society's edition of Lewys Dwnn's Visitations, where another link is inserted between him and Herbert, married to Lucy, daughter of the Earl of Hereford, namely, Herbert, married to Nest, daughter of Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of South Wales, which link must be an error, as Nest, after having borne one or two sons to Henry I, was married to Gerald de Windsor.

[2] By his marriage with the daughter of Milo Fitz-Walter, Earl of Hereford, he became possessed of the Forest of Dean. He married a second wife, Mawd, by whom he had issue, Matthew.

[3] According to Collin's Peerage, this Peter married Alice, daughter of Robert Fitz-Roger; and in page 169, vol. i, of the Welsh MSS. Society's edition, it is stated that he married Alice, daughter of Sir John St. John, of Bletso, and the match here given is assigned to another Peter Herbert, his grandson. In an old MS. Book of Pedigrees, in the handwriting of Twm Sion Catti, it is stated that Peter married Alice, daughter of Blethyn Broadspear, as above. This MS. also gives the substance of the copy of the Commission, cited in the Notes, at page 197 of vol. i of Welsh MSS. Society's edition.

[4] Reynold was second son to Peter Herbert; but at the death of his elder brother, Herbert, in 1248, he succeeded to the family estates.

[5] Adam Herbert had issue by Christian, daughter of Gwarin Ddu, Lord of Llandilo, two sons, Thomas, the eldest, who succeeded to the Lordship of Llanllowel, and Jenkin, whose descendants are here given.

[6] Gwilym ap Jenkin had issue four sons, Thomas, John, David, and Howel. The descendants of the latter are given in page 196, vol. i, Welsh MSS. Society's edition.

[7] Thomas ap Gwilym had issue, besides Sir William Thomas, Howel, Philip, Ievan, and three daughters.

[1] He was Knighted by Henry V for his valour in the wars in France. His children were William, Earl of Pembroke; Sir Richard, of Coldbrook; Elizabeth, married to Sir Henry Stradling, Knight; and Margaret, married to Sir Henry Wogan, Knight.

[2] William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, married Anne, daughter of Sir Walter Devereux, Knight, and had issue four sons and six daughters. His natural sons were Sir Richard Herbert, of Ewias, and Sir William Herbert, of Troy. He was beheaded at Banbury, in 1469, together with his brother Richard, and several other gentlemen of distinction.

[3] Of Ewias. He was father of four sons and one daughter. His wife had been previously married to John Malefant; and after the decease of Sir Richard, in 1510, she married Sir William Bawdrip. A full pedigree of the descendants of his son, Sir George Herbert, of Swansea, is prefixed to the "Memoirs of Sir Matthew Cradock, Knight, by the Rev. J. M. Traherne, M.A., F.R.S.", etc.

[4] He was the first Earl of Pembroke, by fresh creation; as his uncle had resigned that title to Edward IV, and in lieu thereof was created Earl of Huntingdon in 1479. He died in March, 1569-70, and was interred in St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

[5] In some pedigrees she is called Ann, daughter of Thomas, Lord Parr, of Kendall, consequently sister to Catherine Parr, sixth wife of Henry VIII, and sister to William, Marquess of Northampton. She died in 1551; and the Earl of Pembroke afterwards married Anne, daughter of George, Earl of Shrewsbury, by whom he had no issue.

[6] He was second son of the Earl of Pembroke: his elder brother succeeded to the Earldom. The words "Lord of Powys" must have been added since Lewys Dwnn's time, as his son, Sir William Herbert, K.B., was created Baron Powis, April 2nd, 1622, and died in 1655.

[7] She was third daughter of the Earl of Northumberland. She died in 1651, age 69.

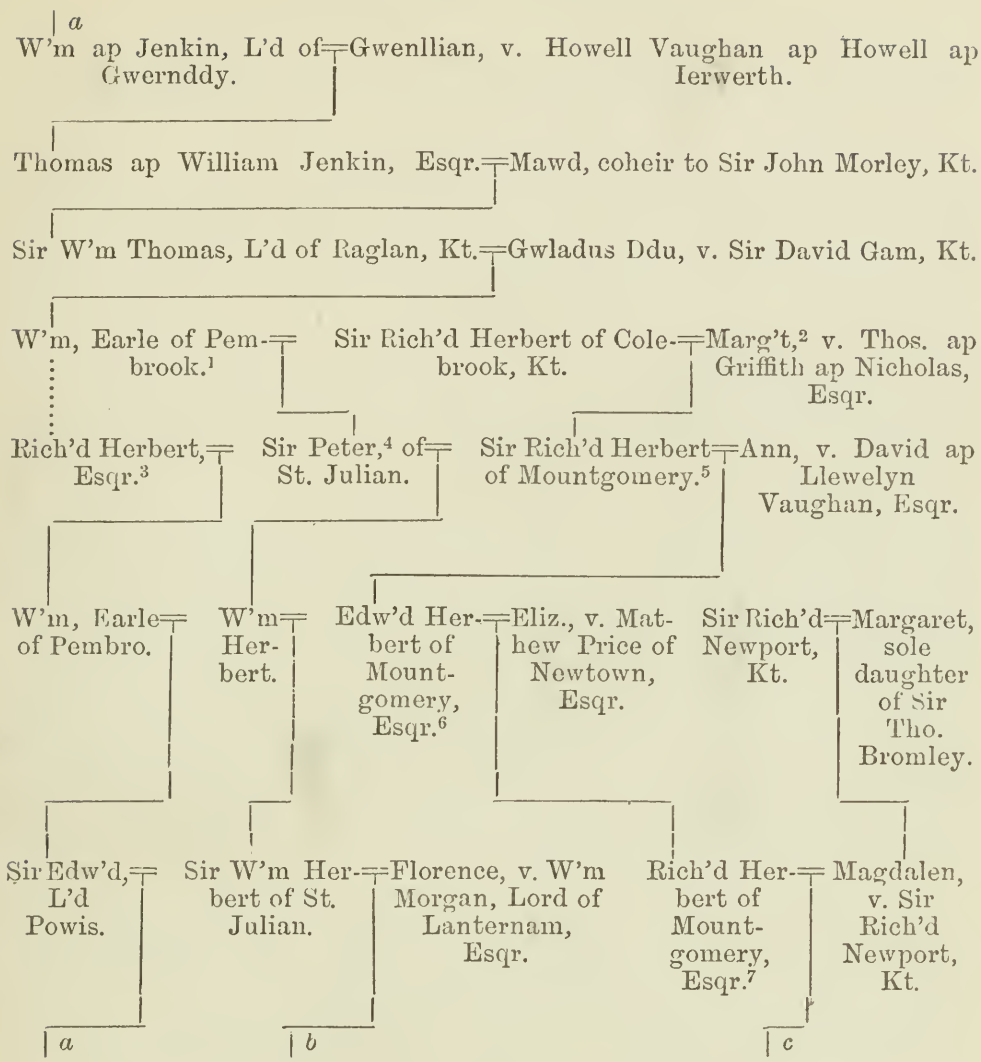
[1] Sir Percy was created a Baronet in his father's lifetime; upon whose death, in 1655, he succeeded to the Barony of Powys. He died in 1666.

[2] He succeeded his father as Baron of Powis, in 1666, was created Earl of Powis in 1674, created Viscount Montgomery and Marquess of Powis in 1687, outlawed in 1689, and died in 1696.

[3] Quere Herbert Fitz Henry? He is called in the preceding pedigree, Herbert, and also in another pedigree of the Herberts of Neuadd Ddu, at a future page.



[1] He married Anne, daughter of Sir Walter Devereux, Knight, and sister to Walter Devereux, Lord Ferrers de Chartley.

[2] After the death of Sir Richard Herbert, his widow, Margaret, married Thomas Herle, Esq., and had issue one son.

[3] For the matches of this Richard Herbert, and his descendants, see the preceding pedigree.

[4] This should be Sir George, and not Sir Peter. He had two brothers, Sir Walter Herbert and Philip Herbert.

[5] Sir Richard Herbert had three wives: the first was Margaret, daughter of Gwilym Gwyn ap Rhys ap Philip ap Dafydd, of Llwynhowel, near Llandovery; the second was the above-mentioned Anne, daughter of David ab Ieuan ap Llewelyn Vychan, of Trefeglwys, Montgomeryshire.

[6] By his first wife, Elizabeth Price, Edward Herbert had issue three sons and five daughters; and, after her death, he married Joyce, daughter of Ieuan Gwyn ap James, descended from Elystan Glodydd. His eldest son was the above-mentioned Richard: his second was Matthew Herbert, ancestor of the present Earl of Powys; his third son was George; and his fourth son, Charles Herbert, Esq., resided at Aston, in the county of Montgomery.

[7] He was father of seven sons and three daughters. See a future page.

All the particulars of their matches and descendants have been added since the time of Lewys Dwnn's Visitation, and brought down to the time of John Rhydderch. May it not be inferred that, as the Pughes of Mathavarn were then one of the leading families, and its head the representative of the county at that period, the original MS. of Lewys Dwnn was then in their possession? It is the only pedigree that has had such additions made to it since Lewys Dwnn's original compilation. The Mathavarn estates were sold in 1752 to the ancestor of the present proprietor, Sir Herbert Lloyd Watkin Williams Wynn, Baronet.

[1] Picot de Say was the first Baron Say: he was living in 1083.

[2] Bleddyn ap Cynvyn, founder of the Third Royal Tribe of Wales, was slain in battle in 1072. By Haer, his first wife, he had a son, Meredith ap Bleddyn, who succeeded him as Prince of Powys.

[3] Cadwgan ap Bleddyn, Lord of Nannau, was for some time associated with his brother Meredith in the sovereignty of Powys. He was slain at Welshpool, by his nephew, Madog ap Ririd, about 1109.

[4] Rhiwallon was second son of Madock ap Cadwgan. The eldest son was Meiric, Lord of Nannau.

[5] Sir Roger Mortimer, Earl of March.

[6] Other authorities state that this Meredydd ap Einion, of Maesmawr, married Seined, daughter of Gronw ab Einion ap Seisyllt, Lord of Mathavarn; and afterwards Gwenllian, daughter of Cadwgan ap Philip Dorddu.

[1] Einion is said to have the epithet of Ddystain, from his being Steward to the Lord of Arwystli.

[2] His son, Wythen Jones, married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Johnes, of Dolau Cothy, Esq., and had issue three sons, the second of whom, named Evan, was father of John Jones, Esq. of Cruglas, Cardiganshire, whose great grandson, the Rev. Evan Jones, of Trewythen, married Charlotte, daughter of H. Combe, of Andover, Esq., and had issue, besides other children, Wythen Jones, Esq., of Rhiwport, near Berriew, who became the representative of this ancient family.

[3] Sir Phillip Shineton was living in the time of Edward the I, and was Lord of Shineton, in the county of Salop. A deed of his son, Hugh Shineton, without date, is sealed with a lion rampant, around which is: "S: HVGONIS DE SCEINTON."

[1] Einion Evell was living in the year 1182: he was son of Madoc ap Meredydd, Prince of Powys, who died at Winchester, in 1160. See Notes to Breuddwyd Rhonabwy, in the Mabinogion, by Lady Charlotte Guest.

[2] This match and the three following have been supplied by the Editor.

[3] He was proprietor of Llwynymaen, and Lloran, in the parish of Llansilin; and also Constable of Knockyn Castle. Lloran Mansion was rebuilt by his father, in 1230, and continued in the possession of his descendants for several generations.

[4] He assumed the surname of Cyffin from a place of that name, in Llangedwyn, in order to distinguish himself from his father, Madoc Goch. Madoc Cyffin married a second wife, the daughter of Gruffydd ap Rhys, descended from Ririd Flaidd.

[5] In some pedigrees she is called Margaret. Evan Gethin was previously married to Margaret, daughter to Llewelyn ap Rotpert.

[6] William ap Meredydd lived at Llanrhaiadr yn Mochnant. He had another son, John, whose descendants are given in the Denbighshire Pedigrees.

[1] Of Witton, in the county of Salop.

[2] Edward Herbert, son of Richard Herbert, Esq., was afterwards the celebrated Lord Herbert of Chirbury, ancestor of the first line of the Lords Herbert of Chirbury. Henry, a younger brother of Edward, and who appears not to have been born at this period of Lewis Dwnn's Visitation, was the ancestor of the second line of the Lords Herbert of Chirbury. From their uncle Mathew, the second son of Edward Herbert, Esq., descended the third line of the Lords Herbert of Chirbury, afterwards created Earls of Powis; the heiress of which line, in whom the three lines above-mentioned eventually centered, was the late excellent Countess of Powis, whose grandson, Edward James, the present Earl of Powis, now so nobly and so worthily represents the great house of Herbert in Montgomeryshire.

[2] Some other authorities state that David Lloyd was son of Sir Gruffydd Vaughan by a second wife named Margaret, daughter of Madoc, of Hope.

[3] She was the heiress of Havodwen estate.

[4] These generations are inverted by mistake of either the editor or printer of the original edition. Richard Lloyd, who married Lucy Powell, was the father of Richard Lloyd (Sheriff in 1616), who married Margaret Newton.

David ap Howel's mother was Eva, vrch. Griffith Lloyd, of Caersws.

Howell ap David's mother was Leiky, vrch. Howell Goch ap Madock ap Griff. of Kery.

David Lloyd's mother was Annest, vrch. Griffith ap Evan Lloyd and so to Einion ap Seysyllt.

Meredith ap Llewelyn's mother was Joned, vrch. Adam ap Madock, of Kery.

Llewelyn Vaughan's mother was Annes, vrch. Evan ap Madock.

Maurice ap Evan's eldest son was Evan, who married Florence, vrch. Thomas ap Evan Lloyd ap Griffith ap Evan Blaeney. Her mother was Gwenllian.....

Evan ap Maurice's children by Florence were David; Rees; and Thomas; Elizabeth, who maried Arthur ap Edward; Catherin, who maried Rees ap Thomas ap Evan ap Maurice ap Edward ap Rees Wynn. The second son of Maurice ap Evan was Rees ap Maurice, who maried Maud, vrch. Maurice ap Oliver ap Tho., and their children were Maurice, John, Sina, Marg't, Eliz., Mary, &c. DESCENDANTS OF MEREDITH, PRINCE OF POWIS.[1]

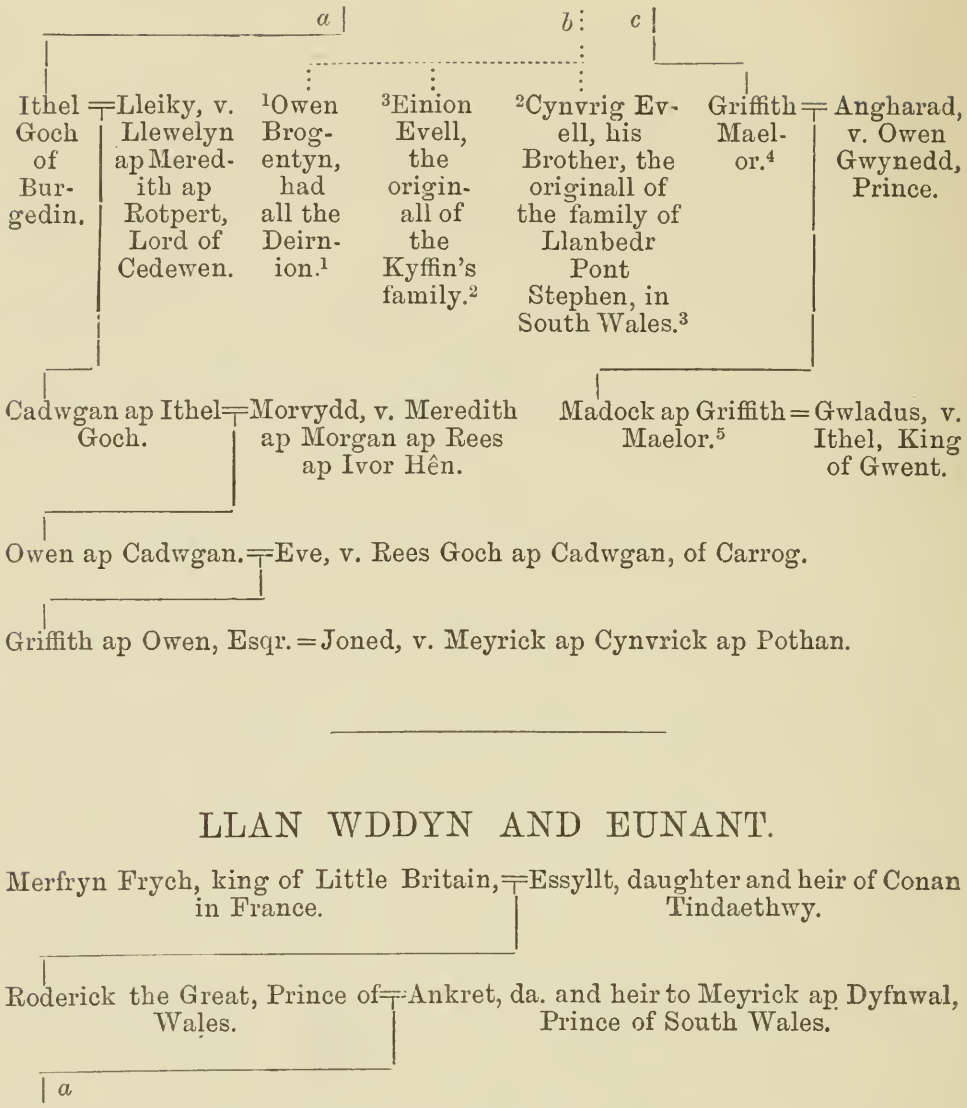
[1] This heading is supplied by Sir S. R. Meyrick, the original Editor.

[2] Meredydd ap Bleddyn succeeded his father in the Sovereignty of Powys. He died in 1133.

[3] Iorwerth Goch, Lord of Mochnant, was ancestor of the Kynastons of Oteley Park, and of Hardwick, in the County of Salop; also of the Barons of Main yn Meifod, from whom derive, paternally, the Powys's, Lords Lilford. For several particulars respecting him, see the Mabinogion, by Lady Charlotte Guest, Part v, page 422.

[4] The moiety of Powys, which descended to him from his father, was called Powys Fadoc. Several poems to his praise are preserved in the Myvyrian Archaiology; among which are elegies upon his death, which took place at Winchester in 1160. He was buried in Meivod Church. His second wife was Matilda Verdun, who survived him, and married John Fitz Alan.

[5] Gruffydd ap Meredith married Gwervyl, daughter of Gwrgeney ap Howel, by whom he had an only son, the celebrated Owen Cyveilioc, who succeeded to the other moiety of Powys. From him are descended several of the leading families of North Wales.



P. 321

LLAN WDDYN AND EUNANT.

[1] According to other authorities, Owain was son of Madoc, by his consort, Susanna. At the decease of Madoc, his dominions in Wales were apportioned amongst his children, and Owain Brogynton had the whole of Edeyrnion and Dinmael. Edeyrnion was afterwards divided between Iorwerth and Gruffydd, sons of Owain, the former ancestor of the Hughes's of Gwerclas, Barons of Kymmer yn Edeyrnion, and the latter of the Barons of Crogen and Branas, and the Barons of Hendwr; Dinmael fell to their brother Bleddyn, ancestor to the Lords of Rug, the Maesmors of Maesmor, &c. Edeyrnion was divided among the descendants of Owain into thirteen Baronies, over which they exercised Baronial Rights which were confirmed to them by Edward I. Owain also inherited from his father the Royal Arms of Powys, Argent, a Lion Rampant sable, "the Black Lion of Powys," which have been transmitted to his descendants.

[2] See Bodfach, page 99.

[3] From him the Davies's of Gwysaney, represented by Philip Davies Cooke, of Gwysaney, Esq., and other families, derive their descent.

[4] He and his brother Owain Brogynton allied themselves with Owain Gwynedd, Prince of North Wales, and Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of South Wales, to resist the attempts of Henry II upon the independence of Wales, and obtained a victory over the English in 1165, at the battle of Crogen, near Chirk Castle.

[5] He was lineal ancestor of the celebrated Owain Glyndwr.

[1] Sir Griffydd Vychan, knight. He was called "Y Marchog Gwyllt o Cae Hywel," or the Wild Knight of Cae Howel, the place of his residence, in the parish of Kinnerley, Shropshire. He was one of the earliest knights of the order of St. John of Jerusalem; others, however, state that he was one of the knights of Rhodes. He lived in the latter half of the twelfth century, and is sometimes confounded with Sir Griffith Vychan of Powys, Knight Banneret, who lived two centuries later.

[2] He resided also at Cae Hywel and at Kynaston, from the latter of which places the family derived their surname. He was living in 1313, when he witnessed a grant of lands near Oswestry, from Hugh Fitz Philip to Haghmond Abbey.

[3] Besides this Jenkin, Madock Kynaston had two other sons, Griffith Goch and John.

[4] Other authorities state that Gruffydd Kynaston's wife was Jane, daughter and heir of John Hoord, son of Roger Hoord, son of Richard Hoord, son of Richard Hoord, Lord of Walford or Walwerth, county of Salop.

[5] Jenkin Kynaston had a brother, Sir Roger Kynaston, knight, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Grey, Earl of Tankerville, and widow of Lord Strange of Knockin. Sir Roger Kynaston was father of Humphrey Kynaston, the Wild, who was outlawed in the reign of Henry VII, during which time he took refuge in a cave at Ness Cliff, still called after him, Kynaston's Cave. His son, Edward Kynaston, married Margaret, daughter of Edward Lloyd of Llwynymaen, and their descendants settled at Hordley, in Shropshire, and were represented lineally by the late Sir John Roger Kynaston, Bart.

[4] This is the last Pedigree, compiled by Lewys Dwnn, in the MS. transcribed by John Rhydderch, who gives the following adroit apology for any errors he might have made in copying the MS. "Courteous Reader. I desire your excuse for what faults and errors hath passed herein, the reason thereof must be wholly attributed to the former blind scrolling and erroneous Manuscript. J. R." John Rhydderch's errors consisted chiefly in misplacing the collateral branches in various tabular pedigrees, which "faults" have however been corrected and collated by other authentic authorities in the possession of Mr. Joseph Morris of Shrewsbury, and of Mr. William Rees of Llandovery, by whom the tabular pedigrees have been re-arranged as now printed. At page 91 of his MS. John Rhydderch gives the following account of Welsh Heralds and Historians.

"A Book of the Pedegrees of Shropshire and Montgomeryshire, together with the Pedegree of Queen Elizabeth, late of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. The Queen's Pedegrees is warranted per the Records in White Hall, and per the Books of the King's Herauld at Arms, who keeps all the Records of the whole Isle. "Lewis Dwnn, Poet, who hath written the Original Book of these Pedegrees, who was formerly Howell ap Sir Mathewe's Disciple, and since a Disciple to Owen Gwynedd and Wm. Lynn, and had a great many of their Bookes. And then he had a Commission over all Wales granted him per Clarenseux Robt. Cox alias Clarenseux Roe de Arms, and Richard Glover, alias Somerset, Marsial to Norey King of Armes. He had that Commission granted him over all Wales, to keep, and preserve the Pedegrees of the Ancient Brittaines, and to give them their Right Claim and Title of Arms, and so he travelled over all the Marches of Wales. And the Cheif of the Nobility and Gentry had shewed him their Ancient Records, their writtings and Charters, and he write a coppy of all those Writtings, Charters, and Records, and I have incerted the day and the year when they were first written per Lewys Dwnn, and the year of Queen Elizabeth's Reign. And he mentions yt. there was then a coppy of all his industrious Travels, with Mr. Broughton, one of the Councell of the Marches, and one with George Owen, Esqr., and with Mr. Richard Glover, alias Somerset, in London, and he had of their Books in return of his.

"Besides, he saith yt. all the Nobility and Gentry hath set their hands to their Pedegrees when he writt'em first, yt. it might plainly appear yt. there was nothing add nor diminish therein.

"He hath taken likewise great care to preserve the Ancient British Tongue, and the most famous works of the Poets. And he is sure yt. no one before him never had such warrants for Pedegrees and Coat of Armes, nor such worthy attestations to his Books per several of the Gentry, and he testifies further whether they are truth or untruth, yt. they must be beliv'd unavoidably, per reason of the numerous authorities and attestations he had of the same.

"There is within this Book the Pedegrees of King James the 1st. and Queen Elisabeth, according as they were in print, to Adam. Here is likewise the Pedegrees of some of the Nobility and Gentry of the Ancient Brittains to Adam, the first man yt. God created, originally written per Lewis Dwnn, Deputy Herald at Arms, in the 28th year of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, of Blessed Memory, and in the year of our Lord Anno Domini, 1516."

It has been deemed advisable to omit the Pedigrees of James 1st and Queen Elizabeth, as they have already frequently appeared in print elsewhere. Three or four other Pedigrees contained in Rhydderch's MS. have also been omitted here, as not having any connection with the Principality. Mr. Joseph Morris is of opinion that the preceding Pedigrees of Montgomeryshire, as well as those of Radnorshire, Denbighshire, and Flintshire, do not comprise the whole of the pedigrees taken by Lewys Dwnn in his Visitations of those Counties. He mentions, in a letter to Sir S. R. Meyrick, the original Editor, "I have myself seen Documents which enable me to state, that in the original Visitation Book of Lewys Dwnn, the following families, in addition to those included in this Work, had their pedigrees entered by Lewys Dwnn in his Visitations of Montgomeryshire:—Bowen, of Trefeglwys; Bowen, of Trallwng-coch, (1595); Davies, of Coedyberen; Derwas, of Sarne, &c.; Evans, of Ceri; Evans, of Penegos, (1599); Evans, of Montgomery (1591); Griffith, of Brongain; Hughes, of Llanfyllin, (1586); James, of Weeg; Jones, of Arwystli, (1586); Jones, of Llanfair; Kery, of Llanfyllin, (1586); Lloyd, of Trefnant; Lloyd of Dolobran; Lloyd, of Domgay; Lloyd, of Gwernygo, (1586); Maurice, of Trevedryd; Maurice, of Llansaintffraid; Morris, of Montgomery, (1592); Morris, of Caer Sws, (1586); Morgan, of Newtown, (1597); Morgan, of Fronfraith; Morris, of Ucheldre, in Bettws; Oliver, of Neuaddwen; Owen of Machynlleth, and Llunllo, (1594 and 1603); Price, of Llanfyllin, (1586); Pierce, of Ceri; Powell, of Llanidloes, (1586); Thomas, of Ystymcollwyn; Thomas, of Aston, in Lydham, (1610); Vaughan of the Glyn; Vaughan, of Melyniog Fawr, in Llansaintffraid; Williams, of Llwynyrhyddod, in Llangurig; and Williams, of Dolanog. Together with those of many other families, who, adhering to the ancient Welsh custom, had not, at that period, adopted a fixed surname."

MORRIS EVANS.[1]

[1] The pedigree of Parry, of Llanerch Hudol, at the close of the MS. is not one of Lewys Dwnn's, but was compiled by Morris Evans, who resided at Llanfyllin; and of the several authorities whom he quotes,—John Salusbury, was of Erbistock, in the county of Flint, Esq. (who, in his collections now at Wynnstay, also quotes Morris Evans as authority for some of his pedigrees). Robert Vaughan was of Hengwrt, in the county of Merioneth, Esq. Mutton Davies was of Gwasane, in the county of Flint, Esq. Charles Lloyd was of Dolobran, in the county of Montgomery, Esq. William Maurice was of Cefn-y-braich, in the county of Denbigh, Esq. Hugh Rogers, was of Welsh Pool, Gentleman. All these were celebrated Genealogists and Antiquaries.
